

Cary Olson Cartwright - Director of Corporate Social Responsibility, Unum

She joined Unum in May of 2004. Prior to joining the company, Olson Cartwright worked at Fleet/Bank of America handling the community relations for Maine. She began her career in television at WCSH in 1985.

Currently she serves on several boards that are focused on supporting Maine's youth and education. She is the current chair of Jobs for Maine's Graduates, and serves on the executive committee for the Maine Coalition for Excellence in Education. She is also on the Great Schools Partnership and Maine Development Foundation boards. She is XI graduate of the Leadership Maine class.

She has a passion to help all kids succeed, and spends time volunteering at Long Creek Youth Development Center.

She graduated from the University of Maine at Orono with a B.A. in Journalism. She attended the executive management program at Northwestern's Kellogg School of Management.

The Maine Children's Alliance recognized her efforts on behalf of children with its Giraffe Award. She was recognized, along with Unum, for a National Education Leadership Award at the Jobs for America's Graduates annual meeting for her work with Jobs for Maine's Graduates.
